Moving Memory
International Symposium >> Festival Erinnerung in Bewegung >>

20 - 22 October 2016 @ TU Berlin
curated by laYla Zami & Oxana Chi Memory lives.
In our body cells, chakras, synapses.
Memory moves.
Our minds, limbs, souls, releasing tension,
inspiration, communication.

How can we understand painful pasts, stand in a meaningful present and move towards livable futures? How can traumatic memories be transformed into charismatic stories?

This unique event convenes sharp, bright and deep personalities of the academic/artistic/activist worlds to meet in a common timespace. For the first time in Berlin, inputs from Black Afro diasporic (USA, Europe, Caribbean), White, Vietnamese, Muslim, Jewish and Roma contributors of various genders gather publicly to explore the words, images, sounds and movements of memory.

Warmest welcome to our special international guests. Heartfelt gratitude to my life and work partner Oxana Chi for inspiring the topic and format, and being the driving force behind this. Her piece Through Gardens left an enduring imprint on me, moving me to explore dance, diaspora and memory in academic research and on stage.

Whether you are fascinated with dance performances, scientific talks, photography, sound technology, poetry, live-music, books, snacks, networking or all at once, you will find appropriate seasonings to enrich tasteful reflections and stirring emotions.
